

DEMOCRACY TRIUMPHANT! The Citadel Redcemed!

Tuesday Morning. Yesterday the election in Indiana came off; and it has been remarked in all quarters as one of the most quiet that ever occurred in ject is to state what information we have received in regard to the election.

Without any effort, under the present judicious law, confining voters to their own townships, the Democracy in this "citadel county" of whiggery, has been peculiarly triumphant.

Nearly every candidate on the ticket has been elected, and every one would have easily been elected, had professed democrats done what was but simply their this matter now, and do nothing but rejoice.

Mind this! If the balance of the State has done as well as the Centre, we shall have a majority on joint ballot in the Legislature of some 20 votes, securing to us a Democratic U. S. Senator, and tending to prove how silly a man looks for condemning in Democrats a course approved and advocated by whigs, and especially by himself as leader.

We give the following as coming near the official result, which latter will be given in our next. The Abolition vote is understood to be about 50 in the
